

Please do not weaken our local legislation to the point that it is no longer useful. It is bad enough already that the CAN-SPAM act was and is throughly useless in stopping the flow of spam in an electronic medium, we do not need for the communications industry to pick it back up by telephone. Why would so many people OPT-IN to a list such as a no-call list if these exceptions are allowed every time a lobbyist throws money at legislators? We already made concessions to allow the legislators themselves to make such contact...something that anyone that joined these lists didn't want in the first place. By the people, for the people. Or has everyone forgotten?
